Chief Of Police Chas. D. Goodlett To Attend FBI Meet

Mr. F. A. Frohbose, Special Agent in Charge of the Miami Office of the FBI, announced that FBI National Academy graduates plan to attend a conference to be held at Atlanta, Georgia, from June 27th thru June 30th.

Attending from the Glades will be Chief Of Police Charles D. Goodlett of the Belle Glade Police Department.

According to Mr. Frohbose, this is the second conference of this type ever to be held and over 300 law enforcement officers from 12 southeastern states, as well as the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico, are expected to attend. Its purpose is to update the training received at the FBI National Academy. Seminars will be offered on Federal constitutional law as applied to searches and seizures, probable cause for arrest and due process in criminal interrogation. Such topics as "Police and Community Relations," "Modern Concepts in Law Enforcement" and "The Prover and His Connection with Sex Crimes" will also be discussed.

A similar sectional conference was held in Newport Beach, California, earlier this month. Others are planned in Kansas City, Missouri, and New York City next year. Thereafter, they will be held in each of the four sections of the United States once every four years. Certificates will be awarded to every officer who satisfactorily completes the course.

It is significant to note that the FBI National Academy, often referred to as the "West Point of Law Enforcement," will complete its 30th year on July 29th. Since it was founded in 1935, 4,740 men have graduated from the Academy. More than 25 percent of those still active in law enforcement are heads of their respective departments.

WHAT ABOUT WORKERS' RIGHTS?

INDIVIDUAL FREEDOM A MUST

In critical areas throughout the world, Vietnam, Korea, Dominican Republic, Germany (Berlin) and others, our military are "on the alert" to defend the rights of man to be free.

The Peace Corps is also working in remote corners of the earth to encourage self-determination and a true understanding and appreciation of freedom.

Thus, thousands of young Americans are sacrificing to bring the fruits of freedom to the world about us. Yet at home the Administration is furthering the substitution of force and compulsion for freedom of choice by urging the repeal of Section 14 (b) of the Taft-Hartley Act. This would take away the freedom of the individual to choose whether or not he wants to join a union in the nineteen states which have protective right-to-work laws.

Compulsion has no place in a republic — every American should have the right to work, whether he wants to join a union or not. Freedom of the individual demands the retention of Section 14 (b) on the statute books.

Victor Riesel tell us that Mr. Meany of AFL-CIO got "red-headed" when checkings complained to him about Labor Department men underling individual unions throughout the country — the Labor Department was "witch-hunting and guilty of harassment — entirely unjustified by the law."

Mr. Labor Secretary Wirtz and his Assistant Secretary Reynolds hot-footed it down to Meany's office to tell him that the law DOES require inspections of unions by "spot-checking." Mr. Meany apparently demanded that this stop.

However, the investigations HAVE resulted in 61 convictions mostly for embezzlement.

Now, Mr. Wirtz and the White House wants to turn over ALL labor to the Unions by repeal of 14 (b) of the Taft-Hartley Act.

Is that what YOU want; if it is it's darn near what you're going to get, IF SOMETHING ISN'T DONE — by you and YOU!

Write, wire or talk to Senators Holland, Smathers and Congressman Rogers, the Capitol, Washington, if you ARE AGAINST THIS!

Have we a Secretary of Labor AND a President of whom we may justly be proud?

"Tis sad, tis true; sad tis, tis true!

UNITED STATES SENATOR

All of us can take great pride in the successful flight of the Gemini 4 space capsule with astronaut Edward H. White II and James A. McDivitt aboard. Once again, the United States demonstrated its space prowess in full view of the world. The 23-minute walk in space by White, whose parents live in St. Petersburg, was spectacular and the readiness of both men to fly

Uncle Dan Says

Dear Mister Editor:

The feller at the country store Saturday night was about half agreed you can't build a Great Society in a country where nobody can tell what time it is.

Zeke Grubb claimed his favorite television program was operating on about four different time systems, depending on what city and state he had tuned in for the moment. He was of the opinion half the country was saving a little daylight while the other half was losing half its minute. He allowed as how it has even got his chickens confused, reported his rooster had took to crowing at 3 o'clock in the morning and some of his hens was saving daylight by loving banlam eggs.

Isaac Cornsford reported the situation wasn't bothering him none, said they was a crack in the east wall of his bedroom and he just waited till the sun come through the crack afore he got up in the morning. Furthermore, Isaac said he didn't work by clock now, just worked till he got tired, which was about noon on a heap of days.

Ed Doolittle, that blames everything from the Seven Deadly Sins to the high price of potatoes, on politics, claimed all this scandal about the time of day got started back under the New Deal when Franklin Roosevelt was trying to put a chicken in ever pot. He allowed as how Franklin figured the earlier he got the chickens up the quicker he could get 'em in the pot.

Personal, Mister Editor, I knowed daylight saving time got started back during World War I by Woodrow Wilson when they was trying to save fuel, but I didn't want to spoil Ed's misery so I just stayed quiet. Anyhow, Woodrow was a Democrat and Ed would have took it from there and come on down to Lyndon Johnson.

Furthermore, I think a heap of the fellows at the store says they're miserable. They ain't never happier than when they were miserable about somepon. Of course, we got some that gits more miserable than others. Per instant, when Bug Hookum is miserable he is miserable all over, but when Ed gits miserable it's only when he's thinking about Lyndon, the Democrats and the Great Society.

I reckon, Mister Editor, most folks is like that, editors for instant. Sometimes I think you fellers was miserable all the time, judging from the editorials you write. And all wimmen was mostly miserable, and when wimmen gits miserable they gits miserable all over. It's like the toothache with 'em, when one tooth aches they all aches. My old lady, fer instant, got up this morning mighty miserable because I ain't moved the lawn in a month. When I git it moved next month she'll be miserable about somepon else. A happy feller can't win.

Yours truly,
 Uncle Dan

AMERICA'S HISTORYLANDS. National Geographic.

I would buy this book, if I could afford it.

We have all read articles advocating "historical" vacations, learning history as we travel. This would be excellent reading before such a jaunt. Even without a trip in mind, it is excellent reading. Color photos, outstanding.

THE OXFORD HISTORY OF THE AMERICAN PEOPLE. Merivale.

I must return this partially read, for it deserves to go to someone with time to read 1156 pages, non-stop. Chapters I have read confirm what critics say — it is brilliant, sweeping, masterly in style.

Emphasis is on the social view. I was particularly taken with incidental, the use of song lyrics to illustrate the times. This book is a project worth undertaking.

ATATURK, Kinross. Churchill called Mustafa Kemal one of the truly great figures of the 20th century. For me this was a memorable introduction to "Father Turk." Ataturk, as he came to be known, and to modern Turkey as well.

MY AUTOBIOGRAPHY, by CHAS. CHAPLIN and WHITE LOTUS, by John Hersey want to be read. Check with us another week and you may see them reviewed. (Unannotated, anyway), from the comfortable obscurity of third person reporting. By Mrs. Theresa W. Casselman.

earlier the Senate, with just four dissenting votes, approved NASA and the Air Force to $5.196 billion authorization for space research spending. This third consecutive authorization to remain at approximately $5.2 billion and compared to our defense spending, which is 10 times greater, is a modest expenditure for a program with great potential benefits for all mankind.

Appropriately, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration is planning a tourist center at the Cape as we get closer to our planned moonshots. The National Park Service estimates that between 2.5 and 3.5 million visitors will visit the moonport after the tourist center is ready to receive visitors in 1967.

I am hopeful that the Park Service report will encourage NASA and the Air Force to grant speedy assistance to the State of Fla., for the construction of access roads and bridges to this new U.S. outpost on the future.

MEDICARE AMENDMENTS
 I was shocked recently to discover that the House-passed version of the Medicare bill was drafted so that certain tax benefits which senior citizens already enjoy were taken away. Accordingly, I was successful in getting the Senate Finance Committee to strike out the House language so that those over 65 will continue to deduct from their income tax returns the entire amount of their unreimbursed medical and drug expenses.

Rogers Warns Against Dominicans
 Congressman Paul Rogers told the House today that the strength of the rebels in the Dominican Republic has been grossly overestimated. Rogers told the House, "Present estimates show rebel strength to be under 5,000 fighting in a country of 3.5 million people. Despite these figures, the rebels claim they have wide popular support. However, the rebel forces have refused to agree to the proposal that free elections be supervised by the Organization of American States."

If the rebels claim to speak for the Dominican people, yet his father was chief of the armed forces under Trujillo. Also of note is the fact that on December 27, 1962 Col. Caamaño participated in a massacre of his fellow Dominicans in the village of Palma Sola, near the Haiti border. The entire village was burned, and the mission left large numbers killed or wounded," Rogers said.

Some facts about Caamaño need to be brought out. For one thing, he claims to be a friend of the Dominican people, yet his father was chief of the armed forces under Trujillo. Also of note is the fact that on December 27, 1962 Col. Caamaño participated in a massacre of his fellow Dominicans in the village of Palma Sola, near the Haiti border. The entire village was burned, and the mission left large numbers killed or wounded," Rogers said.

"It is clear that if we had acted as swiftly in Cuba as we did in the Dominican Republic, Castro would not be in power today," he noted.

Congressman Rogers said that

In Florida, after a day's fishing beer's the one... for good taste, good fun

Wherever you fish for sport — on the ocean, by the booming surf, or on some quiet country pond, it's great at the end of the day to head for a rewarding glass of beer. While you're talking over the times that got away, or pan-frying the ones that didn't, you enjoy your sport — bowling or strolling, golfing or gardening — a frosty glass of beer makes a naturally great accompaniment.

Hyacinth Control Experts To Meet

New techniques in control of aquatic weeds will be discussed by experts from several states and at least one foreign country at the fifth annual meeting of the Hyacinth Control Society, June 27-30 at the Seabreeze Holiday Inn, Palm Beach.

Zeb Grant, a West Palm Beach engineer, serving as program chairman, notes that aquatic weed control is a serious and costly matter, and it involves not only hyacinths but a host of other weeds.

In the past year about $200,000 was expended by the Central and Southern Florida Flood Control District for the control of weeds in District canals, says Grant, director of FCD operation and maintenance. But other expenditures by cities, counties, drainage districts, individual farmers, and the state run weed control costs into several million dollars annually, just in Florida.

Danger from aquatic weeds is highlighted, he said, in a recent publication of the U. S. Army, Office of Civil Defense, on "Special Aspects of Environmental Resulting from Various Kinds of Nuclear Wars."

This document predicts: "Should control programs now in operation be interrupted, the navigable waterways of the South would be a mass of vegetation within three years."

New equipment developed by the Army Corps of Engineers for use in aquatic weed control will be described at 10:15 a. m. June 28 by Charles F. Zeiger of the Corps Jacksonville District Office.

A report on the usefulness of manatees, also known as sea cows, in control of weeds will be given at 11:30 a. m. June 28 by Dr. Peter Sgrus of Florida Atlantic University, Boca Raton. He is directing a three-year research project on this question for the FCD.

U. S. Department of Agriculture men from Fort Lauderdale and state wildlife authorities will report on effects of various chemicals tested in recent study programs.

A British official from Oxford, Control, will discuss use of acrolein and other herbicides in this country at 2 p. m. June 29.

Other authorities from as far away as Pennsylvania and California will present reports in the three days of sessions.

Less Schurer, assistant director, Palm Beach County Mosquito, England, E. C. S. Little, will summarize "A project for drift free aerial spraying of water weeds" at 1:30 p. m. Tuesday, June 29.

Florida Growing At Fastest Rates 7.5 Million in '75

Florida continues to lead the parade of fastest growing states. I noted one estimate that forecasts Florida's population gain by 1975 will be 44 percent above the current level. The Florida Development Commission's latest population survey reports our 1960-64 gain was 15.2 percent with population hitting 5,703,000 in July last year.

By 1975 we are expected to add another 2 1/2 million according to one source. The Florida estimate of growth in the next 10 years is running about 11 percent, points ahead of California, but that state is expected to add 6,119,000 people by 1975, the largest total by far for any state.

'65-66 Fishing Licenses Due By June 30th, 1955

Florida, fresh water fishermen are being urged to avoid the rush and buy their fishing licenses now. The new 1955-56 fishing licenses are available at the offices of all County Judges and their authorized sub-agents.

According to O. E. Frye, Executive Director, Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission, the new 1955-56 fishing license is not required until midnight June 30, however, they are presently being honored by Wildlife Officers. Buying the license now will prevent many fishermen from embarrassment at a later date when they decide on a sudden fishing trip and find they have no license.

Licenses fees are:
Combination resident hunting and fishing, $10.50; Resident annual fishing, $3.00; Non-resident annual, $8.00; Non-resident 14-day continuous fishing, $3.25; Non-resident 5-day continuous fishing, $2.25.

Cattlemen Warned Of Over-production In Good Times!

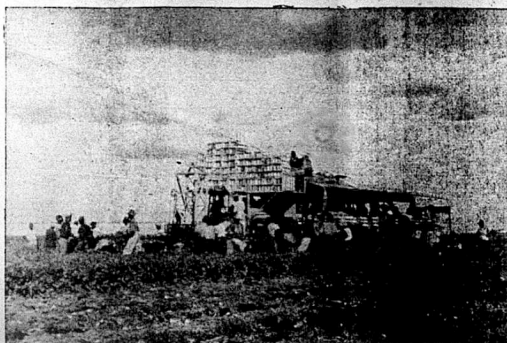

Cattle feeders and hog farmers are being warned to take it easy on expanding their production.

Prices for beef and pork are good now — much better than they have been for some time — but they won't stay good, economists warn. If farmers react to good times as they have in the past and start overproducing.

Agricultural observers are hoping for the best but expecting the worst. It's pretty hard to change human nature, and farmers are as human as the next fellow.

It is being pointed out that a general build-up of cattle in feedlots could kill the market next fall and winter. With care in marketing, however, it is suggested several years of good prices are possible.

Celery Harvester Cuts Man Hours But Hand Workers Still Required

There's a new machine working in South Florida which may ease the plight of the celery growers — that of inadequate labor supplies.

Experiments on a mechanical celery harvester are being conducted by researchers with Florida's Agricultural Experiment Stations' Department of Agricultural Engineering.

Research from these tests should be available in several weeks, according to Prof. J. F.

Beeman assistant agricultural engineer with the Stations.

"This study is to develop the functional requirements for a celery harvester. The experimental machine isn't meant as a prototype, but simply a field test machine for drawing up specifications from which manufacturers can design commercial harvesters," Prof. Beeman said.

The machine must be quickly adjustable to handle plants which are transplanted both shallow and deep. This is done by controlling the cutting depth hydraulically, he added.

Preliminary results indicate that celery can be harvested with a root length suitable for market. Damage has been cut below standards set up by the inspection service.

There are still some problems, however. The researcher reports that "hand trimming" and "sorting" of diseased plants will still be needed.

Celery is one of the top crops in Florida, accounting for more than 11,000 acres. The Experiment Stations researcher explains that, on the average, it takes 250 man hours per acre for harvesting and trimming.

It's estimated that this figure can eventually be reduced by 30 percent because of a mechanical means of harvesting.

Boaters Warned On Bridge Repair

Army Engineers in Jacksonville today cautioned navigation interests to use extreme caution in passing through the Atlantic Coastline Railroad Bridge across the Okeechobee Waterway near Fort Myers while repairs to the bridge are underway.

A recent collision by a vessel with the fender system of the bridge caused serious damage, necessitating the closure of the south channel during the next three to four weeks while repairs are being made. The north channel, which has a horizontal clearance of 49 feet, will be open to vessel traffic at all times, but Army Engineers said, caution should be exercised in transit.

Repairs to the pilings and fender system were started Monday, June 14, according to Lt. Col. Joseph V. Chaufy, Acting District Engineer for the Corps of Engineers.

CONTEST WINNER — Ten-year old Rose Marie Wolf, of St. Petersburg, is the winner of the Florida Landmarks Naming Contest. Rose Marie named Florida's orphan porpoise "Charlie". The name was selected from more than 13,000 entries over a five-month period. She and a dozen of her friends got a free day's outing at the new tourist attraction complex on U. S. 41 between Sarasota and Venice.

The American Dairy Association reports that in nine states and 73 federal milk order marketing areas, March showed an increase in sale of whole milk of 3 per cent over March, 1954. For the same periods in South eastern Florida, the increase was 8.3 per cent.

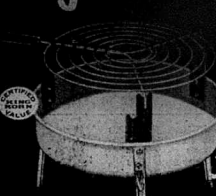

Hypoluso, pronounced "high-puh-lux-o", was settled in 1873.

Ad On Shaving Cream - Raw Egg Yolk

A gob of shaving cream or the yolk of a raw egg seem to be about the "most unlikely places in the world to see a printed design."

You'd probably declare it can't be done. You'd be wrong. It can be done by a new electrostatic device now being offered to put trademarks or wording on individual fruits and vegetables.

The method really isn't printing as we know it because nothing touches the surface which is to bear the design. Actually, it's a transfer of ink powder from a screen by means of an electric current. It has proved successful in marking such things as avocados, apples and potatoes.

A San Francisco firm holds the basic patent rights and has granted licenses to other companies for development in specific areas, such as wall coverings and textiles.

An electrically charged stencil screen with a design on it permits the ink powder to carry the design toward an oppositely charged plate, or backing. Anything between screen and plate gets a reproduction of design.

Multiple colors can be used, but each requires its own screen and a separate "pass" between screen and plate. For a sharp clear design, screens may be as fine as 250 lines to the inch.

An egg shell is a pretty fragile thing. But because there would be no pressure on it, electrostatic printing could put a trademark on each individual egg.

It's highly unlikely, but if a largemouth, black bass was caught in the Gulf of Mexico or Atlantic Ocean, in Florida waters, it would still be under the jurisdiction of the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission.

Capt. Don Aunapu Graduates From Air Force School

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. — Captain Donald S. Aunapu, formerly of Belle Glade, Fla., has been graduated from the U. S. Air Force instrument instructor school at Randolph AFB, Tex. The Air Force pilot, now trained as an instrument instructor and flight examiner for multi-engine jets, is being assigned to a Strategic Air Command (SAC) unit at Homestead AFB, Fla. His unit supports the SAC mission of keeping the nation's intercontinental missiles and jet bombers on constant alert.

Captain Aunapu, a graduate of Belle Glade High School, received his commission through the aviation cadet program. His wife is the former Margrit Kraemer of Germany.

All fresh water fishing licenses are sold by County Judges or their authorized license agents. A resident fishing license costs three dollars and allows the license holder to fish anywhere in the state, twenty-four hours a day and three hundred and sixty-five days a year.

Kenaf Growth Spurred By Badly Needed Rains

How fast is fast?

Try this Kenaf, a new potential paper-pulp product being studied by researchers with Florida's Agricultural Experiment Stations.

Kenaf, grew about 12 inches in seven days (June 7-14). Dr. G. C. Killinger, Stations agronomist, says the plant's high rate of growth was due to the badly needed rain which fell over parts of central Florida during the check period.

It was calculated that some three and a half to four inches of rain fell during the period causing the more than inch-a-day growth.

The use of kenaf as a possible paper-pulp product is new even though its production in Florida is not. In the past, the annual plant has been bred by researchers for its outer bark and vast fiber content. However, the paper industry uses the entire plant, making necessary a new variety better suited to the industry's needs.

Paper-pulp company officials in the Southeast are showing interest in kenaf as a substitute for wood pulp in their plants.

—By the way, Dr. Killinger report it's not unusual for a plant to grow more than an inch per day when rain follows an extended drought period such as we have had over much of the state in recent months.
